

A Professional Development Workshop for Teachers

Teaching with Primary Resources: Archeology & Archives

Teachers will look at different ways to use primary sources in teaching, as well as getting a guided tour of the Fragments of Franklin Court exhibit and a behind-the-scenes tour of the park archives. Educators will also have an opportunity to discover how archeologists use clues to piece together history as they explore Independence Park Institute's hands-on archeology classroom.

Date: April 20, 2013

Time: 9:30- 1:00

Cost: $20.00 per person

Location: Independence Park Institute

Three and one half hours of Act 48 credit will be provided.

This workshop is limited to 30 participants – Reserve your spot today!
